Alex Sher

Alex Sher is an American fine art photographer whose resolute admiration of feminine sensuality instantly heralded him to worldwide acclaim. Sher's underwater photographs have been exhibited in the world's greatest galleries and museums.

Alex Sher was born in Ukraine and moved to the US with his parents in 1995. His first underwater shots are dated 2010. The earliest underwater fine art works were published in 2013. In 2015 Sher's works were exhibited in Louvre (Paris) and later in museums of London, New York, Los Angeles, and Moscow His first personal exhibition was in Beverly Hills in 2015. Alex's first photo book "Mermaids" was published in 2018.

"Sher's photography is the finest expression of femininity I have ever met, a sensual poetry of dark abyss transforming light into an endless game of fragility and strength."

Lilia Kim, Writer

About Underwater Photography

Water, one of the primary elements of nature guards its dark abyss against light and air. Whenever these two sneak in, the water mercilessly devours them. Yet its power gives in to the beauty, releasing the light and air it held captive. When a weightless beauty wrapped in light and air bubbles shines before my camera - the camera takes pictures on its own. I am just holding my breath.
